We're having a fundraising workshop!

Writing about Family: Ethics and Techniques with Penelope Scambly Schott

Sunday, April 13, 2014
1:00 – 4:00 p.m.
TaborSpace
5441 S.E. Belmont Street
Portland, OR
Tuition: $45.00

Family members are part of our most immediate experience, but how do we write about them? What can or can't we say? Will they hate us no matter what we say?

This workshop for both poets and prose writers explores potentially risky material and suggests ways of handling it. Participants will leave with the beginnings of at least two new pieces.

Poet and workshop leader Penelope Scambly Schott has written extensively about family, confrontational women, and other difficult issues. Her verse biography A is for Anne: Mistress Hutchinson Disturbs the Commonwealth received the Oregon Book Award for Poetry. Her latest collections are Lovesong for Dufur and Lillie Was a Goddess, Lillie Was a Whore.

Register TODAY! Class is limited to 12 participants.
